To determine which exercises are most beneficial for activating shoulder muscles, researchers compiled a list of the 10 exercises most often performed by both recreational lifters and athletes and most commonly prescribed by trainers.